Y grads witness disaster

It was a day that should have been gray with rain, not with smoke. It was a day when television anchors got choked up and told viewers to reach to a Higher Being for help. It was a day no one expected.

The nation watched in amazement and fear. And for those who breathed the fumes of crushed life and watched buildings fall like dominoes, the scene was all too reminiscent of a movie that shouldn't have gotten farther than the big screen.

Chris Carlson, a former BYU student, had been told there was a smoke problem at the World Trade Center.

"Typical," he thought as he exited the Rector Street subway station.

Then he saw the World Trade Center on fire.

"I didn't see the second plane hit. I just heard it," he said.

Bush consoles a nation

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush and congressional leaders sought to calm a shaken nation and show the government was functioning and determined after Tuesday's deadly terrorist attacks. From the Oval Office, Bush pledged to "find those responsible and bring them to justice."

As fires still smoldered at the Pentagon less than a mile away, Bush told the nation, "Our way of life, our very freedom, came under attack" when hijacked planes destroyed the World Trade Center in New York and severely damaged the Pentagon.

Administration officials and members of Congress said early evidence pointed to suspected fugitive terrorist Osama bin Laden, who has been sheltered in Afghanistan. Afghanistan's hardline Taliban rulers denied such suggestions.

A senior administration official, speaking on the condition of anonymity, cited "strong information" implicating bin Laden. The official said Bush is considering a wide range of military options targeting bin Laden and, perhaps, Afghanistan.

Retaliation is not imminent, but Bush is determined to act as swiftly as possible, the official said.

News Briefs

Compiled from staff and news service reports

Iraq downs unmanned U.S. spy plane

BAGHDAD, Iraq – A second unmanned U.S. spy plane has been downed by Iraq in less than a month, Baghdad said Tuesday, following American reports that Iraq was beefing up its ability to strike U.S. and British aircraft patrolling no-fly zones over Iraq's north and south.

A U.S. military spokesman said a plane was missing and its loss was being investigated.

The official Iraqi News Agency reported that wreckage of the downed aircraft – carrying "highly advanced equipment" – had been found. It did not mention any pilots.

Maj. Brett Morris, spokesman for a U.S.-British military task force in the Gulf, said coalition forces had lost a Predator aircraft Tuesday similar to the reconnaissance plane lost last month.

"There is an investigation going on ... with regard to the Predator's disappearance," he said. "We are working with the assumption that the plane has gone and are trying to figure out why it went down."

U.S. Postal Service raises mailing prices

WASHINGTON – The cost of mailing a letter will go up again next year, jumping 3 cents to 37 cents.

Citing a looming $1.65 billion deficit, the U.S. Postal Service announced Tuesday it will seek rate increases averaging about 9 percent, including the boost for personal letters.

Robert F. Rider, chairman of the agency's board of directors said the decision by the governing board was unanimous.

The increase in first-class stamps will be accompanied by increases in other types of mail as well: First-class, up 8.2 percent; Express Mail, 9.7 percent; Priority Mail, 13.5 percent; periodicals, 10.0 percent; advertising mail, 7.3 percent and packages, 8.9 percent.

The U.S. Postal Service, although a part of the federal government, does not receive tax money for its operations. It is required to pay its own expenses from fees charged for moving the mail.

Vaccination issues cause funding loss

SALT LAKE CITY – Twelve school districts could lose more than $400,000 because about 200 students did not have up-to-date inoculations last school year.

State law requires that all students be current on immunization shots in order to attend public school. The law allows the state Office of Education to withhold $2,116 for every student who is not in compliance.

In the districts that will lose money, the vaccination most often missing was the second MMR.

The lack of a second MMR may have contributed to the 1996 measles epidemic in southwestern Utah that involved an outbreak of more than 100 cases.

Box Elder, Granite and Salt Lake districts stand to lose the most money, between $60,000 and $135,200. The other nine – Garfield, Juab, Logan, Murray, Nebo, Ogden, Provo, Tintic and Tooele districts – could each lose between $1,516 and $19,044.

Utahns may see refund on power bills

SALT LAKE CITY – Despite a rate hike granted to Utah Power by a regulatory board, customers will likely see a decrease in their power bills.

The Public Service Commission granted Utah Power a $40.5 million rate increase on Monday. But last February the commission granted a $70 million preliminary increase that added $3.85 to the typical homeowner's bill.

Therefore the amount collected over $40.5 million will be subject to refund. The power company said the refund amount is about $22 million.

The commission will have hearings the first week of October to determine how customers will be affected.

There are about 645,000 Utah Power customers in Utah, part of the 1.5 million customer base of PacifiCorp in six Western states.

TERROR IN AMERICA

Y campus shocked by terrorist tragec

By Bill Brady

Morgan Van Wagoner

Students watch as the breaking news of the terrorist attack events are broadcast in the Student Center on Tuesday.

As violence gripped the cities of New York and Washington D.C. on Tuesday morning, BYU officials acted quickly to confirm the safety of 35 BYU students stationed there.

"We have been able to check on all our Washington students," said Carri P. Jenkins, director of communications for BYU. "All 33 Washington D.C. students are okay."

Two students located in New York City could not be reached Tuesday, but "we don't have any cause for worry," Jenkins said. Administrators confirmed the students were not working at the World Trade Center in Manhattan.

Both 110-story towers of the Trade Center tumbled earthward Tuesday morning following a terrorist attack. A hijacked plane was flown into the side of each building.

In Washington, D.C., the Pentagon was also the target of a kamikaze-style strike.

President Merrill J. Bateman cancelled the Devotional at which he and Sister Bateman were to speak.

In President Bateman's remarks at a campus prayer meeting in lieu of Devotional, he discussed what precautions students abroad are to take.

"We have counseled them with the same instructions given by the church to missionaries around the world," he said.

Students abroad have been asked to stay away from United States government offices and U.S.-based businesses. Any suspicious activity should be reported, and all types of political conversation avoided.

"There is concern," Jenkins said. "These precautions will certainly be followed today and tomorrow, and into the following week."

The instructions apply to BYU students located around the world, including study abroad centers in London, Paris, China, New Zealand, Bangkok and the Philippines.

Sandra Rogers, vice president of international affairs, contacted all of BYU's study abroad programs by the time President Bateman addressed the student body.

Due to an increased awareness of security, study abroad centers could not be reached for comment.

"I'm just concerned for the health and safety and well-being of the students," said Rod Boynton, associate director of International Study Programs.

Despite BYU's concern for students based at international study locations, President Bateman emphasized that "there is no need to fear for our lives."

United said Flight 93 left Newark at 8:01 a.m. with 38 passengers, two pilots and five flight attendants.

Minutes before the 10 a.m. crash, an emergency dispatcher in Pennsylvania received a cell phone call from a man who said he was a passenger locked in a bathroom aboard United Flight 93. The man repeatedly said the call was not a hoax, said dispatch supervisor Glenn Cramer in neighboring Westmoreland County.

"We are being hijacked, we are being hijacked!" Cramer quoted the man from a transcript of the call.

The man told dispatchers the plane "was going down. He heard some sort of explosion and saw white smoke coming from the plane and we lost contact with him," Cramer said.

FBI agent Wells Morrison wouldn't confirm that the plane was hijacked, but said the FBI was reviewing the tape of the 911 call.

President Hinckley condemns violence

By Ryanne Higley
ryanne@newsroom.byu.edu
World/National Editor

President Gordon B. Hinckley of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints condemned Tuesday's terrorist attacks, saying evil has manifested its "insidious and dastardly hand."

"Today has been a day that will be remembered always in the annals of our nation," he said at the start of a Mormon Tabernacle Choir concert Tuesday night in the Tabernacle.

"It has been a day when the ugly face of hatred has shown itself with terror, death and destruction."

The concert was originally for the National Association of Insurance and Financial Advisors. But because of the day's events, church officials changed the concert to a memorial service.

"It has been a day when uncounted numbers of the innocent have perished and loved ones have been left to sorrow," President Hinckley said.

"Many have been wounded and this our nation has been severely injured and insulted," he said.

> "It has been a day when the ugly face of hatred has shown itself with terror, death and destruction."
> — President Gordon B. Hinckley

"But dark as is this hour, there is shining through the heavy overcast of sorrow and anger the solemn and wonderful image of the Son of God, the Savior of the world, the Prince of Peace, the exemplar of universal peace. And it is to him we look to in these circumstances."

In the invocation, President Thomas S. Monson, First Counselor in the church's First Presidency, prayed that though the nation's hearts are touched, their spirits would be undaunted.

"May thy blessing attend all those who are bereaved, and in particular, bless and magnify the president of our nation," President Monson said.

Provo blood centers fill with donors

By Erin Johnson
erin@newsroom.byu.edu
NewsNet Staff Writer

The American Red Cross has mobilized several blood donation efforts in response to Tuesday's tragedy along the east coast. Bloodmobiles and blood centers have been inundated with donors since the news broke yesterday morning.

According to blood services team supervisor Annalee Buttes at the Orem Blood Donor Center, the center was inundated with donors since early Tuesday morning and the center has extended its hours from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. in order to accommodate the donor turnout.

"We are trying to be as prepared as possible," Buttes said.

Buttes said the center received donations from more than 45 people Tuesday, a large increase over the usual 15-20 donors.

All of the Provo blood centers are currently full and the Red Cross has asked donors to call to schedule a blood donation appointment in advance. The Orem Center has asked volunteers to leave their name and number to schedule an appointment for Thursday or Friday to donate blood. The Center does, however, continue to be in need of platelet donors.

To further frustrate efforts, the donated blood cannot be transferred to Washington, D.C. until later in the week due to the cancellation of all domestic flights within the United States.

BYU senior Ruth Griffieon was among those donors who showed up Tuesday at the blood center, only to be told that donation capacity was full. Griffieon, however, stayed at the center as a volunteer, helping to take names and numbers of prospective donors.

Many Orem and Provo residents turned up yesterday at bloodmobiles and donation centers around the area. Provo resident Kristi Rands decided to donate blood as soon as she heard the news.

"I was horrified. My brother is in New York and I just wanted to help," she said.

Gerald Clark of Spanish Fork also wanted to help out in the effort and said he turned into the parking lot when he saw the bloodmobile.

"It's the right thing to do," he said. "My immediate reaction was horror and I couldn't believe that anyone would go that far to make a point. I'm mad more than anything else."

Wasatch Mental Health in Provo and the Stoffer's factory in Springville had previously scheduled blood drives for Tuesday and have now opened their doors to the public in order to accommodate the influx of anxious donors.

The Red Cross will need donations over the next few weeks and will also extend its hours.

Air passengers receive varied attack updates

By Michelle Lau
lau@newsroom.byu.edu
NewsNet Staff Writer

Allen Browarny's flight left the Calgary International Airport on Tuesday at 6:55 a.m. MDT heading for Houston.

After the breakfast trays were cleared, the captain alerted the passengers and crew they would be diverting to and landing at the Salt Lake International Airport.

Browarny and his fellow passengers were only informed of the detour and were assured nothing was wrong with their aircraft.

Once they arrived, airport officials told them about the terrorist attacks on the United States.

Passengers were grounded after the Federal Aviation Administration responded to Tuesday's attacks by canceling all domestic flights and re-routing incoming international flights to Canada. Flights are cancelled until at least noon EDT today.

However, not all passengers experiencing surprise landings were uninformed.

Karen Henry, a mother from Houston, was traveling with her husband and four children. They were on a flight from Portland, Ore., to Houston.

The crew on their flight provided passengers with general information regarding the crashes at the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. Henry's daughter, Emily Henry, 6, said the crew told them "people were exploding things."

But not everyone, even those on the ground, were as well informed.

Carol Tanner, from Denver, was was watching the news in a Salt Lake terminal around 8 a.m. during her layover when all feeds to airport televisions were discontinued.

BYU students sing "Come, Come Ye Saints" during the special prayer meeting in the Marriott Center on Tuesday

BYU mourns with prayer meeting

By Alice-Anne Lewis
aliceanne@newsroom.byu.edu
NewsNet Staff Writer

With the Marriott Center nearly full, President Merrill J. Bateman addressed a somber group of students and faculty on what he called "the greatest tragedy that has ever happened on American mainland."

What was originally scheduled as the Tuesday Devotional became a short prayer meeting during which President Bateman offered information, counsel and prayer.

"To our knowledge, no BYU students are in danger," President Bateman said.

He announced all BYU students studying abroad have been contacted this morning. Students studying abroad were told to avoid any U.S. facilities for the time being.

According to President Bateman, this is the same information missionaries for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints have been given.

President Bateman encouraged students and faculty to donate blood to help in the relief effort.

He then offered three pieces of advice: not to fear, to be respectful of all people and to remember the good news of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

"There is no reason to fear for our lives," President Bateman said.

He reminded those gathered not to speculate on who was to blame, but instead to remain respectful toward all people.

"Even in times of turmoil, it is possible to feel peace," President Bateman said. "The greatest thing we can do as a university is to gather together once a week to celebrate the message of the gospel.

"Today we've seen how fleeting life may be. We need to gather and talk of sacred things."

President Bateman also told students they are lucky to have the gospel in their lives.

"You have the only message that gives hope for peace. Peace will not come into the lives of people until they internalize the message of the gospel."

"Right when the plane hit, I could see people falling out of the building. I was just sick to my stomach. I've seen people die today," Carlson said.

Carlson said people were running toward him in panic as shrapnel and debris rained to the ground. Carlson ran under scaffolding until the police ordered everyone to go up Liberty Street.

"I went up to the Chase Manhattan Building," Carlson said. There were hundreds of people there, if not thousands, just watching these two towers burning. There was paper, paper and debris everywhere."

Carlson said a lot of people were crying. Some were shaking their heads, and others were joking around. They couldn't believe what had happened.

"Everyone was staring at it like it was a show," he said.

Carlson called his wife on a pay phone and started walking home toward Brooklyn. About five blocks from the Trade Center, he turned to look at the north tower and saw a huge gaping hole. As he was looking, the south tower collapsed before his eyes.

"I looked up and saw this cloud of dust and debris coming down really, really fast," he said. "And people were running, panicked, toward me."

Carlson said he ran into a sporting goods store and started pulling people in.

"I said, 'Get in here, get in here, get in here, get in here!' We got in and the cloud was just about there and we shut the doors.

"And then all the sudden it was quiet, except there were ladies in the store crying hysterically. And there was a dark gray cloud. You couldn't see anything on the street. It looked like pea soup."

Carlson waited until the smoke started to dissipate, then he headed again for the Brooklyn Bridge toward home.

"There was a mass exodus of people. I looked down FDR Drive. There were no cars, just thousands of people trying to get onto the bridge. People were just dazed. There were people who were bleeding, people who were covered with soot, people who were coughing, people in shock. There were several thousand people."

Carlson, a member of the bishopric in his area, went to the church building and began calling the families of the ward, some of whom work in the World Trade Center.

Carlson said so far the entire ward has been safely accounted for.

"Our old bishop, who actually works in the World Trade Center, was on the 80th floor of the first tower that got hit," Carlson said. "And he went down 80 floors and was able to get out before anything else happened."

And then there was Jonathan Hill, who was just a few minutes late to work.

At five minutes to nine, he exited the subway below the World Trade Center and was told he would not be able to enter the building he walked through every day on his way to work.

He walked along Church Street, three blocks north of the World Trade Center, when he heard a booming noise.

"I looked up and saw a huge explosion," said Hill, a 1995 BYU graduate, describing the second attack on the Twin Towers.

Hill watched as a chunk of car-size chunk of metal fell from the building.

Unharmed, he ducked into a shoeshine shop. The man behind him was not so fortunate. He was struck by a piece of metal, inflicting a gash to his head. Hill pulled the bleeding man inside the shop and called 911. The ambulance arrived 25 minutes later.

Down south in Virginia, Tinelle Wood, an administrative assistant at a research company across from the Pentagon, was watching the news about New York on television when she heard a loud boom. She opened the blinds and saw a ball of fire rising from the Pentagon.

"It was so big and so loud and so emotional," said Wood, a BYU student.

"The blaze took up at least five stories. I knew that there had been major destruction."

Seth Blaylock, a former BYU student, left class at New York University to see that one of the Twin Towers had fallen. He returned home and wrote an e-mail. When he looked out the window again, both towers were gone.

"When you look to the south you can see smoke, but when you look toward the Empire State Building to the north, it's a clear day," he said.

Geoff Howard, a former BYU student who works in Washington, D.C., joined the crowds to watch flames shooting from the Pentagon.

"This summer, I watched the fireworks across the river from the Pentagon," he said. "Today, I went down and watched the fireworks going on inside the Pentagon building."

NYC-bound missionaries safe in Denver

NewsNet Services

All missionaries in the terror-stricken New York City and Washington, D.C., areas are accounted for and the 21 missionaries who left Salt Lake City for New York on Tuesday morning are safe in Denver, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints confirmed Tuesday.

In a statement that expressed "profound sympathy" for the victims , the church said it is "taking appropriate measures and cooperating with public safety officials."

Other missionaries leaving Salt Lake on Tuesday have either departed and arrived safely within the United States or have returned to Provo, the church said.

The Salt Lake Airport closed after the Federal Aviation Administration grounded all flights nationwide until at least noon today.

Normal operations will resume today at church facilities — including all the temples from Ogden to Provo — after temporarily closing at 2 p.m. Tuesday. The Washington D.C. Temple will also open after its Tuesday closure.

REACTIONS

"Today has been a day that will be remembered always in the annals of our nation. But dark as this hour is there is shining through the heavy overcast of sorrow and anger the solemn and wonderful image of the Son of God, the Savior of the world, the Prince of Peace, exemplar of universal peace, and it is to him we look to in these circumstances."

—President Gordon B. Hinckley.

"I didn't really believe it, I had to turn on the television to see that it was real."

—Jana Hales, junior from Texas majoring in Elementary Education.

"I can't believe it, but we'll pull through."

—Kimberly Morris, sophomore from Oklahoma majoring in elementary education

"At first I didn't realize it was serious. But now, going on with normal life seems strange."

—Julianne Smith, graduate student from Arizona

"It's a shock that it could happen on American soil. It happens other places, not here."

—Brian Mead, a sophomore from Morgan, Morgan County, majoring in neuroscience.

"It couldn't happen here. I thought no one could touch us, but we sure got touched today."

—Nathan L. Gend, a freshman from Washington majoring in communications.

"Being from a part of the world where these are more common, it doesn't make them easy."

—Bashar Sadar, 27, a graduate student from Nablus, in the West Bank.

"I can't stop thinking about the families involved. It's hard to move on. If I could fly out there I would."

—Chris Bens, a junior from Fruit Heights, Utah majoring in history.

"We're going after the bas____."

—Senator Orrin Hatch

"You never think it's going to happen to us ... But everyone has animosity toward America, lots of countries do."

—Shauna Davis, a junior from Las Vegas majoring in computer science.

"You need to rely on God in these situations and put your trust in him that your dad is going to be able to make it back home."

—Ghaleb Husseini, 26, from Jerusalem.

New Yorker Doug Ellis had been collecting contributions to aid New Yorkers affected by the terrorist attack for over an hour in front of the Wilkinson Student Center before he was asked to leave by the director of student leadership.

"Without a permit there is absolutely no way to assure students that their money is going to a good place," said Director of Student Leadership Michael McCleve. "Who does the record keeping? Who does the auditing?"

According to McCleve, the set policies for obtaining a permit were recently updated. Departments can now raise money if they make a request through the dean of students and if their request is approved. The time it takes to process such a request varies from 24 hours to one week, McCleve said.

McCleve also said BYU has Care Weeks to raise money for victims of events such as the World Trade Center and Pentagon attacks, but they want to keep everything monitored, guided and organized.

Ellis shut down his operation before the 11:00 a.m. prayer meeting after talking with McCleve.

"Nothing like this has happened since 1941 — Pearl Harbor," said Ellis. "I want to be one of the first to stand up and say give."

Ellis set up a makeshift card table and radio in Brigham Square from 9:15 a.m. until 10:45 a.m. while students freely tossed $5's, $10's, $20's and even checks into an ice chest. All checks were made out to Doug Ellis.

Ellis' collection was composed of materials found in the Harris Fine Arts Center.

BYU freshman Ashley Brothers donated money to Ellis' fund.

"If it was my family, I'd want someone to help," Brothers said.

Students shocked by the tragedy and eager to help found Ellis' fundraising operation to be a convenient means in a convenient location.

Yang Jiechi, Ambassador for the Embassy of the People's Republic of China in the United States will address students today at noon in the JSB Auditorium.

The Ambassador will speak about relations between the United States, with regards to education, economics and politics.

"We have a very special relationship with China," said International Vice President Erlend Peterson.

"We are honored to have the Ambassador take the time to visit BYU."

According to Wei Liqing, first secretary for the Embassy of the People's Republic of China in the United States, BYU is the first campus the Ambassador has accepted the invitation to speak at.

As a symbol of China's dedication to learning the Ambassador will present 1,000 books in Chinese to the Harold B. Lee Library, preceding the lecture.

According to Secretary Liqing, BYU has one of the largest Chinese language programs, and China hopes students will be encouraged to continue learning about China and its culture.

the paramedics had been told that "hundreds of police and firefighters are missing" from the ranks of those sent in to respond to the initial crash. Schaitberger feared the attacks will have killed more firefighters than any other in U.S. history.

"It's going to be a devastating number," he said. One firefighter waiting for orders to deploy to the smoky rubble said he expected to find some of his colleagues among the dead.

"This is going to hurt," said Jack Gerber, a 43-year-old city firefighter. "A lot of guys got killed today."

Law enforcement officials trying to piece together a case linking bin Laden to the attacks were focusing some of their efforts on possible bin Laden supporters in Florida. They were aided by an intercept of communications between his supporters and harrowing cell phone calls from victims aboard the jetliners before they crashed.

"The pictures of airplanes flying into buildings, fires burning, huge structures collapsing have filled us with disbelief, terrible sadness and a quiet, unyielding anger," Bush said in his Oval Office address.

Thousands died in the attacks, he said.

"We will make no distinction between the terrorists who committed these acts and those who harbor them," Bush said without elaboration.

As the president spoke, military police in combat fatigues guarded streets in the center of Washington and patrolled in armored vehicles. Major thoroughfares that normally have a steady flow of cars were almost empty.

Bush began the day in Florida. For security reasons, he was taken to air bases in Louisiana and Nebraska before returning to Washington at dusk.

Bush and other top administration officials and congressional leaders of both parties presented a united front in the face of what Attorney General John Ashcroft called "one of the greatest tragedies ever witnessed on our soil."

news reports suggesting it could rise to 800.

In addition, a union official said he feared 300 firefighters who first reached the scene had died in rescue efforts at the trade center — where 50,000 people worked — and dozens of police officers were missing.

"The number of casualties will be more than most of us can bear," a visibly distraught Mayor Rudolph Giuliani said.

Police sources said some people trapped in the twin towers managed to call authorities or family members and that some trapped police officers made radio contact. In one of the calls, which took place in the afternoon, a businessman phoned his family to say he was trapped with policemen, whom he named, the source said.

Because of fires and unstable debris, no rescue attempts were going on Tuesday night at the site of the towers, however.

No one took responsibility for the attacks that rocked the seats of finance and government. But federal authorities identified Osama bin Laden, who has been given asylum by Afghanistan's Taliban rulers, as the prime suspect.

Aided by an intercept of communications between his supporters and harrowing cell phone calls from at least one flight attendant and two passengers aboard the jetliners before they crashed, U.S. officials began assembling a case linking bin Laden to the devastation.

U.S. intelligence intercepted communications between bin Laden supporters discussing the attacks on the World Trade Center and Pentagon, according to Utah Sen. Orrin Hatch, the top Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The people aboard planes who managed to make cell phone calls each described similar circumstances: They indicated the hijackers were armed with knives, in some cases stabbing flight attendants. The hijackers then took control of the planes.

All of the planes were bound for California and thus loaded with fuel.

At the World Trade Center, the dead and the doomed plummeted from the skyscrapers, among them a man and woman holding hands.

Shortly after 7 p.m., crews began heading into ground zero of the attack to search for survivors and recover bodies.

Entertainment industry shuts down after attack

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The Emmys and Latin Grammys canceled their awards ceremonies, amusement parks closed and Hollywood studios locked their gates as Tuesday's terrorist attacks darkened a stunned entertainment industry.

All Broadway shows were canceled in New York and box offices at the theaters were closed indefinitely, said Jed Bernstein, president of the League of American Theaters and Producers.

Walt Disney World in Florida and Disneyland and Universal Studios in Southern California were shut down, while most resort hotels remained open.

In Southern California, major movie studios such as Paramount, Sony Pictures and Warner Bros. were shuttered, including studio tours and production of movies and TV shows.

Many of the landmark attractions on the Las Vegas Strip, including the Eiffel and Stratosphere towers, were closed Tuesday. Gambling continued at all of the resort's casinos and the evening's slate of headliner entertainment remained on schedule.

The second annual Latin Grammys, scheduled to be broadcast live Tuesday night from Los Angeles, were canceled "due to unimaginable events," according to a written statement.

Workers outside the arena hurried to dismantle the elaborate stages shortly after the attacks, and Recording Academy officials said the show would not be rescheduled.

"It's over," said Barb Deeghan, a spokeswoman for the show. "That's it. It's canceled."

The 53rd annual Primetime Emmys, which had been scheduled for Sunday night in Los Angeles, were postponed, but organizers expected to reschedule the show.

"We will set no new date until we find out the extent of this tragedy and the national mourning that's going to take place," said Jim Chabin, president of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

Other cancellations included tapings for the "Tonight Show With Jay Leno" at the NBC studios in Burbank, "Late Night With Conan O'Brien" in New York and a concert by pop singer Madonna Tuesday night in downtown Los Angeles. The Leno and O'Brien shows will be dark all week, NBC officials said.

Malls across the United States locked their doors in response to the attacks and major-league baseball postponed its entire schedule for Tuesday.

Many movie theaters and other public gathering areas also closed and television networks scrubbed regular programs in favor of round-the-clock news.

Utah State Fair fate unknown

And the band played on. This is what the Utah State Fair is hoping will happen during the event's final days.

The fair has five different bands scheduled to play at the grandstand Thursday through Sunday night, but Tuesday's national tragedy might change that.

For now, it's business as usual. The fair is planning to continue as scheduled, said Denise Stanger, marketing coordinator for Utah State Fairpark.

The current schedule has Clay Walker playing on Thursday, REO Speedwagon on Friday, Travis Tritt on Friday, LFO on Saturday, and Lee Ann Womack on Sunday.

The problem is that most of these groups are not in Utah right now, and if they can't make it they will have to cancel or reschedule, Stanger said.

For example, Travis Tritt is at his home in Atlanta. His publicist said Tritt might try to use a bus to make the journey to Salt Lake.

The fair's most popular group, according to ticket sales, was Lonestar, who played yesterday. The group was already in Salt Lake when the national tragedy occurred.

The other groups' management companies were unsure of the status of performance plans.

Most of these groups really enjoy playing at venues such as the Utah State Fair because of the intimate atmosphere fairs provide, Stanger said. The grandstands at the Utah State Fair seats 4,800 people.

The Oak Ridge Boys, who played on Friday, told Stanger that they were excited by the opportunity to play at this fair because they got their start in Utah.

All of the groups are scheduled to play at 8 p.m. on their respective nights. Ticket prices for most of the shows start at $19 and include admission to the fair.

For more information about the Utah State Fair, look on their Web site at utah-state-fair.com.

NCAA postpones several games, more considered

Associated Press

Two Thursday night college football games were postponed and suspension of this week's entire schedule of Division I games was being considered following terrorist attacks in New York and Washington.

The Mountain West Conference athletic directors today convened via teleconference and will make a recommendation tomorrow to the MWC Board of Directors regarding the playing of all athletic contests for the remainder of the week.

There is a need to monitor events for the next 24 hours before making a definitive determination. A decision regarding MWC athletic events for the remainder of the week is expected after 2:00 MT.

"We are most concerned about the safety of all our student-athletes and supporters, as well as the propriety of conducting competition in light of today's tragedy," commissioner Craig Thompson said today. "Numerous logistical problems have developed and need to be addressed and it is just too early to proceed with any plans at this time."

The Atlantic Coast Confeence announced the postponement of all athletic events through Thursday, including Penn State at Virginia and Ohio at North Carolina State.

The Ohio-N.C. State game was rescheduled for Nov. 24; a new date has yet to be set for Penn State-Virginia.

Earlier Tuesday, the commissioners from all the I-A conferences, including the ACC, Big East, Big Ten, Big 12, Pac-10 and Southeastern, discussed their options for staging this weekend's games in a conference call hours after the attacks.

"We're going to monitor and carefully evaluate everything, and definitely make a decision tomorrow (Wednesday) on our weekend football games," Big East commissioner Mike Tranghese said, speaking only for his

PGA Tour postpones 3 tournaments

ST. LOUIS — The PGA Tour canceled Thursday's starts of the World Golf Championship and two other tournaments.

Commissioner Tim Finchem said the American Express Championship, featuring Tiger Woods and top players from tours around the world, would begin Friday with 36 holes.

The Tampa Bay Classic with open with 18 holes on Friday and Saturday and a 36-hole conclusion. The same schedule has been applied to the Buy.com Tour event in Oregon.

The Senior Tour will remain on schedule, with a 54-hole event that starts Friday in North Carolina.

All of the schedules are subject to further change.

"We will continue to monitor this situation and make any further adjustments to our tournament schedules that appear to be appropriate or necessary," Finchem said.

With air traffic shut down across the country, several players were unable to get to St. Louis for the American Express Championship. Among those stranded were PGA champion David Toms, Phil Mickelson and Davis Love III.

Woods arrived Monday to conduct a clinic for American Express, with which he has a major endorsement contract.

"This is a sad, sad day in America," Woods said somberly after playing a practice round, which he began about two hours before the initial attack on the World Trade Center.

Security tightened for 2002 Olympics

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY - Stunned Olympic officials said Tuesday that security for the 2002 Winter Olympics will be completely re-evaluated in the wake of terrorist attacks on America. But they vowed the games will go on as planned five months from now.

A $200 million plan to protect athletes and spectators is no longer sufficient in the wake of Tuesday's attacks, said Mitt Romney, president of the Salt Lake Organizing Committee.

"I look for the federal government to revisit the public safety plans for the games," Romney told The Associated Press. "We will be fully engaged in that process and will make it our highest priority."

Both Romney and Utah Gov. Mike Leavitt, though, said the games would be held as scheduled Feb. 8-24. Romney said they could help serve as a healing force for a troubled world.

"The games for me are a symbol of the human spirit and world peace," Romney said. "That symbol is needed more today than ever before."

Romney was in Washington D.C., discussing security plans for the Games when the terrorist attacks hit. He was in the Ronald Reagan building when he and his staff were evacuated to a private residence in Virginia.

The day before, Romney met with the director of the FBI and members of Congress to review security plans and press for the final disbursement of $12.7 million to government agencies for Olympic security.

> "This is a sobering reminder that there are evil people in the world who will do outrageous things."
> — Gov. Mike Leavitt

Romney said until Tuesday's shocking events, he had been satisfied with plans for Olympic security. Now, though, everything has changed.

"The conduct of public safety in this country can never be the same," he said. "I thought the program was a complete and holistic plan, which did not have gaping holes or obvious weaknesses. I think that characterization has to be completely reevaluated in light of today's tragedy."

Leavitt held a news conference in Salt Lake City to say the games would "go forward as planned" on Feb. 8-24. He said organizers will do "all we humanly can to make sure the games are safe."

Doman, Denney named MWC players of the week

By Martin Harris

NewsNet Sports Writer

Brandon Doman

Ryan Denney

The Mountain West Conference has honored two of BYU's football players.

Quarterback Brandon Doman and defensive end Ryan Denney have been named offensive and defensive conference players of the week, respectively. They received the awards because of their stellar performances against the California Golden Bears last Saturday.

This is the first time either Doman or Denney have won the conference player of the week awards.

"It is a good recognition for me and the entire defense," Denney said concerning the award.

BYU beat Cal 44-16 to improve their record to 3-0.

"It's an honor," Doman said. "It recognizes my play and the team's play."

Doman is lighting up scoreboards and destroying defenses this season. Against California, he posted three passing touchdowns and three more rushing scores. He threw for 272 yards and rushed for 29 more.

"I was really happy with the way the game turned out," Doman said. "I wish we came out a little stronger but I think it taught us a lesson to be a little looser coming out for a big game."

Doman's passing yards rank him third in the nation among quarterbacks. He has 11 touchdowns, both through passing and rushing, in just three games and is completing 68.4 percent of his passes.

Doman is on pace to score more than 47 touchdowns and pass for more than 3,300 yards this season. Denney has four sacks and 19 total tackles for the year.

Denney repeatedly got past the Golden Bear's offensive line to hurry the quarterback and got to the opposing QB twice for sacks. He recorded seven tackles, three of which were for a loss.

"It was a good game," Denney said. "I was able to make some tackles and some big plays."

Doman and Denney are excited about the upcoming game at Mississippi State on Saturday.

"It will be by far the best team we've played this season," Denney said. "Hopefully, we can get prepared in practice and go down there and play well."

Both players are playing at a high level and could garner additional awards from the conference.

own league's games.

He added: "The commissioners will be talking to their institutions on conference calls, and then we will talk again and make a collective decision."

Two other games are scheduled for Thursday night - Texas Tech at Texas-El Paso and Kentucky Wesleyan at Tennessee-Martin. Colorado State is at UNLV on Friday night.

The Virginia-Penn State game was set to be televised by ESPN, with the Nittany Lions' Joe Paterno needing one more win to tie Bear Bryant at 323 career wins - the most by a major college coach.

In Division I, there are 116 games scheduled Thursday through Saturday, including three major matchups in the state of Florida - No. 13 Washington at No. 1 Miami, No. 8 Tennessee at No. 2 Florida and No. 10 Georgia Tech at No. 6 Florida State.

The final decision on whether to play, though, could rest with the federal government, not the commissioners. The government most likely will determine it teams can travel by air and if it's safer for large crowds to gather at stadiums nationwide.

"It may be out of our hands," Tranghese said. "There are a lot of issues, emotional ones. Kids flying, playing in large venues with a lot of people and if the government says do something, we do it."

...experts in Salt Lake City for a conference said attacks such as the ones in New York and Washington are hard to anticipate and nearly impossible to prevent.

"If you've got a bomb parked outside a building, you can defuse it," said Roger Davies, a speaker who works for a British security consulting company. "If you've got a 767 headed your way, there's not much you can do."

At the 1972 Munich Olympics, 11 Israeli athletes were killed after being taken hostage by Palestinians. Since then, security has become a key part of preparations for all host cities.

In Salt Lake City, efforts have focused on training 60 different law enforcement agencies to work together.

Half the state's 3,500 officers will be dedicated to Olympic security. The FBI and Secret Service are expected to send 3,000 agents. There also will be 1,000 fire and emergency medical personnel.

Officials already have prepared for the possibility of an air attack at the games. Airspace above Olympic venues will be temporary no-fly zones, patrolled by U.S. Customs Service Blackhawk helicopters and jets.

At the Salt Lake Organizing Committee on Tuesday, employees were given the option of going home for the day.

Meanwhile, the possibility of a similar attack during the Olympics was on the minds of athletes.

"The Olympics are definitely a target that would bring the world's attention," U.S. women's skier Jonna Mendes said. "Athletes are out there doing good things and representing their countries in great ways, but it's pretty scary to consider the possibilities."

Romney also postponed an announcement on Olympic torchbearers, scheduled for Wednesday in New York's Battery Park, which is two blocks from where the World Trade Center stood before the attacks.

IOC president Jacques Rogge expressed "deepest sympathy" to the families of the victims and sent letters of condolence to President Bush, the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Salt Lake organizers.

TERROR IN AMERICA

Afghanistan trembles with explosions

Associated Press

KABUL, Afghanistan — Explosions resounded north of the Afghan capital near its airport early Wednesday, hours after devastating terror attacks in the United States.

The United States quickly denied any involvement in the violence in Afghanistan, which has been shielding Osama bin Laden, a suspected terrorism mastermind linked by some U.S. officials to Tuesday's attacks in New York and Washington.

A U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the fighting in Kabul appeared to be rocket attacks by opposition rebels in response to the attack on rebel general Ahmed Shah Massooda Sunday. The insurgents blamed the attempt on the ruling Taliban, a hard-line Islamic group.

An opposition spokesman denied the rebels were responsible for Wednesday morning's violence and a Taliban spokesman blamed the explosions on a fire at an ammunition depot.

The explosions began around 2:30 a.m. and came in rapid succession, seconds apart, making buildings shudder. There were no sounds of airplanes or anti-aircraft fire.

Rockets also reportedly landed in the northern suburb of Khair Khana, hitting the Taliban depot. Giant plumes of black smoke billowed skyward. A Taliban military division is nearby.

Officials at the airport could not be reached.

In the northern suburb of Khair Khana, giant plumes of black smoke billowed skyward from a burning Taliban ammunition depot. The area contains a Taliban military division.

From the Taliban's headquarters in southern Kandahar Abdul Hai Muttmain, a spokesman for the Islamic militia, blamed the explosions on a fire at the ammunition depot. He did not say how the depot caught fire, but denied that there was an attack on the capital.

"There was an explosion in an ammunition depot, and our aircraft were flown to a safe place, creating a misunderstanding that there had been an attack. We deny that there was any attack on Kabul," he said.

However, it was unclear from his statement why it was necessary to move the aircraft to safety.

White House spokeswoman Claire Buchan said explosions reported in Kabul are not retaliatory attacks by the United States.

"The United States is not responsible," she said.

Her comments were echoed by U.S. Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld during a Pentagon briefing in Washington. "I've seen those reports," he said of the Kabul explosions. "In no way is the United States government connected to those explosions."

Taliban soldiers in central Kabul said the explosions seemed to begin with a low-flying helicopter that fired rockets into the area of the airport. There was some return fire by the Taliban with anti-aircraft weapons, the soldiers said.

It was impossible to travel in the streets because of a nighttime curfew, from 11 p.m. to 4 a.m.

Rebels battling Afghanistan's Taliban religious government denied involvement and indicated the United States might be responsible.

"We didn't fire any rockets into Kabul," the spokesman, Bismillah Khan, told The Associated Press by satellite telephone from Gulbahar, several miles behind opposition lines.

"We have been hearing that the United States of America will attack," he said.

Afghanistan's hard-line Taliban rulers condemned the attacks in the United States and rejected suggestions that Osama bin Laden could be behind them.

The opposition blamed Sunday's suicide attack against their leader on the Taliban and neighboring Pakistan, which they say supports the Islamic militia. The Taliban denied any role in the attack,

"And the Lord called his people ZION, because they were of one heart and one mind, and dwelt in righteousness..."

Powell ends visit early

Associated Press

LIMA, Peru – Secretary of State Colin Powell cut short his first official visit to South America to return home to deal with devastating terrorist explosions in New York and Washington on Tuesday.

Before leaving, Powell, urged foreign ministers from the Organization of American States to quickly pass a democracy pact as a clear collective message against terrorism.

The charter was adopted unanimously, and Powell immediately left for Lima's military airport to fly back to Washington.

Peru had been the first stop on a trip that was to take Powell to Colombia on Tuesday and Wednesday to show support for President Andres Pastrana's U.S.-backed counter-narcotics initiative, Plan Colombia.

"A terrible, terrible tragedy has befallen my nation, but it has befallen all those who believe in democracy," Powell told the OAS assembly.

"I hope we can move the order of business to the adoption of the charter," he said, "because I very much want to be here to express the United States' commitment to democracy in this hemisphere."

The session opened with a moment of silence before representatives of Venezuela, Colombia, El Salvador and Canada all made statements condemning the terrorists who earlier in the day crashed two planes into the World Trade Center. Explosions also rocked the Pentagon and the State Department and spread fear across the nation.

Terrorist attacks may plunge U.S. economy into recession

Associated Press

WASHINGTON – The terror attacks in the nation's business and government capitals may well push the teetering economy into recession, analysts suggested. The Federal Reserve said it stood ready to pump extra money into the economy if needed to try to avert such a development.

The Fed's promise to supply additional money to the banking system was similar to a pledge it issued on the morning after the October 1987 stock market crash. That action, only two months into Alan Greenspan's tenure as chairman, was credited with keeping the economy out of recession.

However, private analysts said the Fed's magic of lower interest rates and ample supplies of cash to the banking system may not be enough to overcome Tuesday's series of attacks, which occurred at a time when the economy was already struggling and consumer confidence was faltering.

"The economy has been on a high-wire act straddling between a recession and anemic growth. Now the terrorists have cut the wire underneath our feet," said Sung Won Sohn, chief economist at Wells Fargo in Minneapolis. "The United States and the rest of the world are likely to experience a full-blown recession now."

But economists said the terror attacks, in addition to hurting consumer confidence, could disrupt the economy in a variety of ways, including severely curtailing air travel, which especially would harm areas that depend on tourism.

"There is no economic good that comes out of this. It is just a question of how bad will it be," said Mark Zandi, chief economist at Economy.com.tion system and the financial markets."

Harvey Pitt, chariman for the Securities and Exchange Commission, issued a statement saying that the closing of financial marketson Tuesday was a "temporary phenomenon. Trading will resume as soon as it is practicable to do so."

Officials said late Tuesday that the New York Stock Exchange, the Nasdaq Stock Market and the American Stock Exchange would remain closed at least through Wednesday.

Voters want commision to redraw boundaries

Utah Democrats call for alternate redistricting plan

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY – A majority of Utah voters say the state should have an independent commission redraw congressional and legislative boundaries after each census, a poll shows.

A Deseret News/KSL survey conducted in September by Dan Jones & Associates showed that 54 percent of respondents would rather the Legislature were not in charge of redistricting decisions affecting Utah's seats in the U.S. House, state House, state Senate and state school board.

The poll surveyed 400 registered voters. The results, which have a 5-point error margin, were reported Tuesday in a copyright Deseret News story.

Thirty-five percent of respondents said the Legislature should continue to control redistricting, with 11 percent saying they didn't know.

With Republicans dominating the statehouse, Utah Democrats already are complaining that the process isn't fair and that Utah should join the growing number of states that employ independent commissions to oversee redistricting.

At a news conference last week, House Minority Leader Ralph Becker, D-Salt Lake, called for an amendment to the Utah Constitution to require such an independent commission.

The Constitution says the Legislature will redistrict.

Dan Jones & Associates crosstabulated the poll answers with the political parties the respondents claimed. Fifty percent of the Republicans said the Legislature should continue to redistrict after the 2010 census; 78 percent of the Democrat respondents advocated the independent commission.

Of those identifying themselves as political independents, 64 percent preferred an independent commission.
